

when you're angry that someone who allegedly threatened your co-workers, so why investigate too much right? Of course the D.A. will investigate herself before she actually brings the allegations to court, unless her husband is a cop and she works with cops all day and decides to just skip the whole investigating part and the whole law thingy and just go hell bent for leather against Mr. Gibbs, even if that means getting his bond jacked to 405,000.00 and leaving him in jail for 40 months until he just pleads to get out of jail. Of course, the defense lawyers will straighten it out, unless they are so intimidated and afraid to cross the D.A. that they just hide under the table and refuse to fight (not that they are well-known for fighting hard anyway). Well surely the Judge will put his foot down and demand that the law be followed (not how it works-if the lawyers don't make a stink, then the judge is likely to allow the shenanigans to continue). This is how people are falsely convicted every day in our courts. Incompetence, politics, failure to investigate, willful failure to investigate, corruption, stupidity, ignorance of the law. I have rights mother-fuckers, whether you think it's your job to admit what happened to me or not. You think I don't know how indifferent people can be? You think I don't deserve closure to these matters? Do you think I spent the last eight years fighting this case to simply give up and walk away because no one wants to admit the truth? For a community who takes such offense at having it's law enforcement threatened, you don't seem to have much problem at all letting your cops shit all over whoever the fuck they want, whenever the fuck they want. You're not just on legal notice, you're on moral notice. Straighten this shit out and give me my life back or just wait for the other shoe to drop and see how the fuck that works out. -robert alan gibbs
